4. Reports
   a. Committee on Curricular Policies
      Three representatives from CCP reported to Council that they have met a few times so far this year, although they have faced some problems with scheduling. Student participation has been good in the group, and they have discussed such issues as 2-2 and V-Print. They are concerned that there is not much of a channel for student input about 2-2, in part because the final decision will be made by the trustees. The administration is asking different departments for possible outcomes if the change to 2-2 is made, to understand how the decision will affect class offerings and academic opportunities for students. The faculty is optimistic about the switch, but CCP is concerned about decreased opportunities for students, especially in certain interdisciplinary departments and classes.
   b. Library Committee
      The elected representative to the Library Committee reported to Council that the committee has met three times, but that scheduling has been hard. There are three specific issues being addressed in the library this year. The first is long-term and short-term planning, so the committee is considering some short-term changes that would improve the library, as well as such long-term issues as possible renovations and extensions of the library. Another issues being discussed by the committee is carrels and lockers, which is of special importance to seniors. The final issue being discussed is the creation of a 24-hour study space in the library, which is being discussed as possibly inside the library, or possibly in another space on campus.
   c. Admission and Financial Aid
      The main topic being discussed by CAFA is racial diversity, and how best to increase racial diversity in both the college’s applicant pool and within the college itself. They are examining the make-up of the Class of 2011 and the class before to view current statistics and trends. They are discussing possible recruitment methods, and determining what data is necessary to improve these methods. There will be increasing recruitment from local areas, and then moving to recruit from areas further away from the college itself. The committee is attempting to talk to students of color already on campus to determine what made them choose Vassar, in order to help diversify the student body.
The committee also expressed a desire to put more of a focus on socioeconomic diversity in the discussion of admission and financial aid.

d. Science Facility Planning

The representative from the SFPC reported that they meet on a regular basis, once a week, and that there are six or seven students that meet in the committee each week. The architects have met with all of the departmental interns, and the college is very close to approaching the stage of letting architects create their individual proposals and bring them to the college. There is uncertainty about the placement of the new building, but some of the prominent options include be replacing either Mudd or Sanders Classroom. The representative reported that the new building is intended to foster interdepartmental courses and programs, as well as fostering new research opportunities. He also assured that the issue of sustainability is being considered in the new building’s design, and gave a timeline of 5-10 years for the creation of the new facility.

e. Investor Responsibility

Nobody was present at the meeting from the Campus Investor Responsibility Committee to give a report.

f. Exec Report (Operations)

Operations reported to Council that VSA Today, which is updated on a bi-weekly basis, is finally available. There is a new section of the VSA Website for VSA Today, and Exec is trying to sponsor a community section of it. Operations also announced that she has added and changed everything on the VSA Website to be completely current and accurate. She has been meeting with a few administrators to ensure that all committees’ voices are heard. CASA has been meeting weekly. The Devils event for freshmen happened this past weekend. This week will have a networking event, which is open to everyone interested in improving their networking skills.

Operations has also been involved with the VSA survey, which she encourages everyone to fill out. Appointments has been meeting, and CRC will be meeting this Saturday about the make-up of the Board of Elections. They are considering restructuring the Board to make it more appealing, possibly creating certain positions for which people will apply, and possibly changing the default Board chair to become co-chairs, which would include one chair and one senior member of Council.

g. Council Report (Joss)

Joss reported that although the dorm began the year in a financial crunch, they have fundraised and significantly decreased their deficit. They have sold old dorm t-shirts, and sponsored an anonymous CD swap among residents. They are participating in the dorm scarves, and already have 130 pre-orders. They sponsored an 80s dance for the freshmen in August, as well as a bagel brunch in September. Other events have included a sophomore snack event, a freshmen cookie decoration event, apple picking with Davison, a Farmer’s feast with the Walker Family Band, the annual Halloween decorating contest, and their first Fireside Chat last Thursday. Their upcoming event will be Harvest Ball with Davison, and tickets will be sold this week in the College Center. Joss also mentioned that they have had some problems with underage drinking, especially in freshmen, during weekdays, and that the dorm will be working to improve on that in the future.

h. Council Report (Raymond)

Raymond reported that they have been sponsoring their usual Study Breaks and Community Cookies each week. He also expressed happiness toward the performance of their new House Advisor. The dorm sponsored a Carnival and Haunted Hoedown a month ago, which he described as expensive, and was unsuccessful because of the rain.
The dorm participated in apple picking with several other dorms in September. The dorm has also sponsored a lot of alternate programming, including movie nights and an upcoming game night. They have a Fireside Chat coming up soon, and are looking to “adopt a family.” They are participating in the campus-wide dorm scarves, and will be getting dorm shirts soon.

2008 reported that things are going well, and that they were named organization of the month last week. They have sponsored both Serenading and the Halloween Party. The class is looking into doing a thesis study break, possibly in the Shakespeare Garden, depending on the weather. They hope in the future to sponsor a much more aggressive food drive than their first, which was very unsuccessful. They have selected their Daisy Chain coordinators, will be hosting a Senior Mug Night or a Karaoke night soon, and reported that the issue of yearbook pictures will be addressed soon.
